Description
I believe this was removed from the Android Webview back in Kitkat, but I know some browsers have been able to implement their own version of it despite that. It would be great to have some text reflow functionality added to Privacy Browser at some point. Not sure what sort of work would be required for it, though.

Text reflow would be a nice feature. I will target this for the 3.x series.

Depending on how it is implemented, this might end up being handled by Reader Mode as described at <https://redmine.stoutner.com/issues/183>.
